SAM SPARTAN THE SPORTSMAN SPEAKS

POLO OR SOCCER ON WHEELS

Nothing like the great outdoors to give one a real zest for life. And that's the way I have spent a good part of my years. Whether it be on a homemade surf board; exploring the ocean bottom; getting a good coat of tan on the beach; driving around looking for some little visited village; or going into snow country in a four-wheel drive jeep. Believe me, I'm sorry for the fellow or gal who is confined to an office every day and doesn't know how to enjoy the beauty of Mother Nature. Never got sand in between their toes or salt water over their faces.

You and I are going to meet in every issue of this magazine. I will tell you of some of the things I have done. As well as those I plan to do. And I will even give you some of the things I am working on so you can try them out. With hints on how to get the best out of our great outdoors. As you read what I say each time, you may get the impulse to drop me a letter. Telling me about some of your ideas and activities connected with what I call my assignment — Surf and Wheels. I won't be able to answer you, but if you have something worth while that may be of interest to the readers, I will incorporate it in one of my future articles.

This time I talk about something you and your friends might like to do: Polo on Wheels! My memory goes back to the days when Polo in this country was a sport for the rich. You had to have a lot of dough to buy a string of good polo ponies. And also the time to practice and keep fit for the game. A Polo match or game was an affair for those in "the social set." I went out to a fashionable suburb to see such a match. It was most exciting. The rider and the pony were almost one. Of course the rider used one hand on his reins. In his other hand he had the mallet used to hit the ball. Alas, that field is no longer there — a big apartment house has been built on it.

About two weeks after that match, I received a phone call: "Want to see something different in Polo? I'll pick you up in my car early this Saturday morning."

And brother, it certainly was something unique. A dozen fellows with their motorcycles were gathered on this country field. Six to each team. You got the idea? It was Polo on Motorcycles! The rules were simple: You got your goal when your ball was driven across the other team's goal line. If a fellow spilled from his motorcycle — the referee blew a whistle for time out. They hadn't as yet figured out any foul rules. After the game they decided that if you struck a driver or his motorcycle with a mallet — that should be counted as a foul. They wore no protective equipment. And fortunately, no personal injuries.

What puzzled me was the sport equipment used — the mallets and ball. It sort of looked familiar. Then my friend informed me: "I got hold of an old croquet set. We bought some extra mallets." So there is your modern version of Polo on Wheels. But let's bring it up-to-date.

I would suggest a team of either 6 or 8 but no more. The ball to be used would be a soccer ball. I see you smiling. Maybe it is soccer on wheels — not polo! You can use a hard wooden ball if you so choose. If you use the soccer ball, you might as well use a hockey stick. But you should use a mallet for the wooden ball. So it doesn't fall from your hand, drill a hole through the stick near the top. Use a wide leather band. It goes around your wrist.

Have four quarters to the game: Each quarter is fifteen minutes. Time between quarters is five minutes or even eight minutes. One point for each goal. Three fouls mean the team loses one point. As much protective equipment as possible: Helmet, eye shield, leg guards, thick hand gloves, and whatever else you want to add.

You fellows with scooters might want to try this game. Go ahead. You should have lots of fun and excitement. I figure you should have some kind of a protective fence for the spectators in case a motorcycle or scooter goes out of control. Though in such an emergency, the rider can "throw" his "steed."
